Beta Announcement

TEACHER & PARENT

Great News... Beta is here! What does this mean? T&P is finally ready to be tested and opened to a group of user testers. Their goal will be to walk through user scenarios that we have compiled to test the usability and function of the site.

T&P is up and running here:

http://107.170.215.33

Over the past week mobile development has continued, teacher and parent profiles were added and the forum structure built. Registration and login functionality was integrated. The database for T&P has been built and is successfully working in local development environment. This means that until the database has been successfully imported to the server, you will not be able to login. You can access the parent and teacher pages at http://107.170.215.33/teacher.html and http://107.170.215.33/parent.html. From there users can navigate to profile and class pages. Once database is imported to server there will be a temporary username and password for both teacher and parent login's as well as registration functionality.

The cutoff date for changes, comments, and issues will be December 15th with the launch of T&P on Wednesday December 17th.

Please contact me with any questions, comments, issues, or concerns!
